CARNEGIE TELLS OF JOY AT LOSING HIS 'BURDEN' OF STEEL

(By Latest Mail)
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—"Pierpont I am the happiest man in the world. I have unloaded the burden upon your back; now I am off to Europe to play," said Andrew Carnegie to J. P. Morgan when the deal was closed by which the Carnegie properties passed to the United States Steel Corporation, according to David A. Reed of Pittsburgh, the argument the other day before the Federal Circuit Court in the suit of the government for the dissolution of the Steel corporation for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Mr. Reed is counsel for the corporation. He said he got the quoted words from his father, James A. Reed, who is a director of the corporation and overheard them.

"Mr. Carnegie's one thought," Mr. Reed said today, "was to retire from a long business career and devote his time to philanthropy, and he rose to the opportunity most magnificently. Counsel for the other side have referred to Mr. Carnegie as a conspirator. In the light of what he has done with his fortune for the good of mankind, to refer to him in terms applied to wretched criminals in the dock is unworthy of the government."

Henry E. Colton, special assistant attorney-general, had brought up the Gary dinners as an agency in maintaining artificial and uniform prices by the corporation and independent iron and steel manufacturers. He asked the court to disregard the contention of the defense that prices have not lately been uniform, but to consider the essential charge that they were consistently uniform until the government filed its dissolution suit, three years ago and Congress began to investigate the corporation.

In combating the charge that the corporation has restrained trade, Mr. Reed said its output has shown a lower percentage of increase than that of its competitors. He quoted figures to support this comparison.

Mr. Reed said the charges of monopoly in Lake Superior area was unfounded, because the corporation never had more than 45.8 per cent, reduced in 1912 to 38 per cent, and the new tariff in removing duty from iron ore, had thrown open to competitors the mines of the world.

FRENCH COLONEL MAKES A BLUFF AND WINS FIGHT

(Associated Press)
PARIS, France.—How an unnamed lieutenant-colonel in the French army stiffened the courage of his men and his own, when they were about to charge the enemy for the first time, is told in the Figaro. The colonel wounded, but convalescent, is described as relating the anecdote on the train as follows:

"It was in the course of one of the numerous battles on our right wing. For the first time my regiment was about to go under fire. The moment was decisive; the regiment had their battle formation and now it was necessary, over open ground, to march straight and resolutely at the enemy. Their fire was hot, and already had produced ravages in our ranks. It was scorching. I had taken my position at the head of the regiment and given the order 'forward,' but, separated from their base, my men hesitated. In vain I repeated the command. Then turning toward them I said:

"What? You flinch? All you will gain out of this turnabout is death on the spot without having been of any use. Attention! Take my arm one of you, and all of you lock arms, and arm in arm, gun in hand, we'll advance. You'll find that's not so bad. 'My word! the idea decided them, and arm in arm, we started forward. They soon got warmed up and for a little I was nearly forced to hold them back. Oh! the brave fellows!"

A lady who was listening said: "It was fortunate, colonel, that you yourself were not afraid." "Not afraid!" exclaimed the colonel. "Oh, madam if you knew what shivers went through me. But when I saw them hesitate, I had to set an example. I was bluffing."

The Anxious Mother—"I don't know what I'll ever do with my child. She screams and kicks all the time." The Adviser—"Make a musical comedy prima donna of her."

The wife of a wealthy manufacturer had occasion to call in the help of a new floor polisher. "Do you understand your business thoroughly?" "All I ask, madam, is that you shall inquire for yourself at my last situation. On the floor of the large drawing room alone five persons broke their limbs during last winter, and a lady slipped down the grand staircase. It was I who polished the floor and the stairs."

At the urgent request of an umpire, the pitcher plodded his weary way to the clubhouse. "I lost my head, I guess," he vowed, as he hesitated near his manager. "I saw a dog gnawing outside the gate," sympathized the manager.
